MINDS ON THE EDGE: Facing Mental Illness connects the dots between agonizing dilemmas facing individuals and families who are living with mental illness, medical practices that can be obstacles to treatment, and public policies that all too often lead to prison rather than providing support for recovery.

The program explores the heart-wrenching situation of parents desperate to help their daughter get treatment when she develops mental illness in college. When she resists, what are their options? The program panelists also engage the challenging issue of the merry-go-round of homelessness and jail that has become all too common for many individuals living with schizophrenia, bipolar disorder and other serious mental illnesses.

Produced by the Fred Friendly Seminars for broadcast on public television, the program features Supreme Court Justice Breyer, Nobel Laureate Eric Kandel, and other experts in medicine, law, and social policy regarding mental illness including Dr. Fred Frese.

Learn more about the program panelists, challenging issues raised by the program, and best practices that can support recovery.
